

Jeff Harrow, Principal
The Harrow Group

Jeff Harrow, current Principal at The Harrow Group has been the chief technologist for the Corporate Strategy Groups of both Compaq Computer Corporation and Digital Equipment Corporation.

Jeff has a two-decades-plus track record of providing individuals, businesses and organizations with insights into today's exponentially growing technologies. His focus remains on how these trends will increasingly change every element of our society and businesses, and he offers insights into the resulting boundless opportunities and competitive advantages for those who stay on top of these trends.

Jeff is a Board Member of the Technology Advisory Board of "The Institute for the Study of Accelerating Change" and the co-author of a book, "The Disappearance of Telecommunications" published by IEEE Press. Jeff's writings on technology have been published in numerous electronic and traditional media around the globe, and Jeff has been interviewed on technology futures for radio and TV programs such as the History Channel's "Modern Marvels." He has also been a judge for Disney's Discover Magazine "Innovation Awards."

Jeff has numerous patents issued and on file in the areas of network management and user interface technology, and he is a commercial pilot.

Additional insights and a more detailed biography can be found at:
<http://theharrowgroup.com/consulting2.htm#Abstract>